

An aerial, top-down view of a wooden motorboat, the Pelagosa 33, floating on dark green water. The boat's deck is made of light-colored wood and is furnished with white outdoor seating, including a sofa and armchairs. A small table with a red floral centerpiece is positioned in the center. Two people are on the boat: a woman in a black and white swimsuit and a straw hat is lying on the sofa, and a man in a white shirt and hat is standing at the stern. The boat's hull is dark, and the overall scene is dimly lit, suggesting dusk or dawn.

The Pelagosa Legend & Inspiration

Pelagosa is not just a name—it's a legend. Inspired by the mystical Croatian island of Palagruža, also known as the Island of Diomedes, this yacht carries the spirit of adventure and resilience.

According to ancient myth, Diomedes, a hero of the Trojan War, found refuge on distant islands after his odyssey, and was believed to be buried on Palagruža—a place of power and transformation.

Pelagosa embodies this spirit: wild, piercing, and unforgettable. She is a one-of-a-kind blend of cutting-edge sensibility, excitement, and style. More than a boat, she is a superior lifestyle experience.
